Substance Abuse Treatment for Persons With Child Abuse and Neglect Issues

Introduction

These KAP Keys were developed to accompany the Treatment Improvement Protocol (TIP) Series published by the Center for Substance Abuse Treatment (CSAT), Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration. These KAP Keys are based entirely on TIP 36 and are designed to meet the needs of the busy clinician for concise, easily accessed “how-to” information.

For more information on the topics in these KAP Keys, see TIP 36.

2

The following questions can be used to help screen for a history of childhood abuse or neglect. They can be asked as written, or they can be asked in relation to developmental stages. To do so, ask the same question with an introductory phrase that reflects different time periods or developmental stages. For example, the question “Were you treated harshly as a child?” can be rephrased as, “When you were 5 to 10 years old...” or “When you were 11 to 15 years old....”

Screening Questions

1. Were there any significant traumatic events in your family while you were growing up? For example, did any of the following events occur in your family:
 - Death?
 - Prolonged hospitalization of a parent/sibling?
 - Incarceration of a parent or sibling?
 - Divorce?
 - A chronic disease?
2. Were you treated harshly as a child?
3. Did you ever experience physical abuse as a child?
4. Did you ever experience sexual abuse as a child?
5. Did you ever experience emotional abuse as a child?
6. Did you experience inappropriate physical or sexual contact with an adult or person at least 5 years older than you while you were growing up?
7. When you were a child, was there violence in your household, such as battering involving siblings or a parent and his or her partner?
8. Do you feel that your parents neglected you while you were growing up?

The following behavior may indicate that a parent or caregiver is abusing or neglecting children:

- Name calling or negative or belittling labeling of children.
- Telling stories that suggest children are living in unsafe conditions (e.g., being left alone, traveling in unsafe neighborhoods).
- Blaming children or directing misplaced anger at them that may mask guilt about poor parenting.
- Inappropriately describing children in terms of their development (e.g., having expectations for a 4-year-old that should be reserved for a 12-year-old).
- Giving children too many responsibilities and too much autonomy for their age.
- Sexualizing the child.
- Imposing inappropriate disciplinary measures: an inability to distinguish between discipline (guiding) and punishment (hurting).

What Children's Protective Services Agencies Should Do

KAP Keys Based on TIP 36

Substance Abuse Treatment for Persons With Child Abuse and Neglect Issues

5

- Respond to reports of child abuse and neglect, and identify children who are being maltreated or at risk for maltreatment.
- Assess the situation—the safety of the child or children, the risk of further maltreatment, the resources and needs of the parents and extended families, and their willingness and motivation to receive help.
- Assemble the resources and services needed to support the family and protect the children.
- Provide settings for alternative or substitute care for children who cannot safely remain at home.
- Evaluate progress and assess the need for further attention by children's protective services.
